

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

Preface

A classified comparative summary of legislation with a subject index is made on cards by the legislative sub-librarian, Mr W. B. Shaw, as fast as the session laws come into the state library. This is necessary to enable him to answer promptly frequent inquiries as to legislation in other states.

The library has been urged to print this index at the beginning of each year in order that legislators and other state officers may know at a glance what of special value in the subject under consideration is available in the publications of other states in our state library without the labor of going there to consult the ms. index. It is believed that this will not only save much time but will contribute materially to the advancement of the standards of legislation, if the promoters and opponents of each measure are able with a minimum of labor to utilize the experience of other states which have been recently working over the same or similar problems.

The references cover the laws enacted during 1890 by 16 states and one territory. In most cases the laws are briefly summarized as well as cited, the aim being to present clearly and concisely material for comparative study of the most recent phases of state legislation on all subjects of general interest. Such a summary was impracticable in the few cases where the laws embraced a great number of minor regulations. Citations, as a rule, are made by state, number of chapter (in laws of 1890), and date of approval. Thus the Saxton ballot law in New York is cited as N. Y. 262, 2 My. In Rhode Island, date of passage by the legislature is given. In the laws of Washington, no chapter numbers are used, but citations are made by date of approval, with references to page. No date could be assigned for bills which became laws without the governor's approval.

This compilation is based on the collection of state laws in the New York State Library. The session laws of South Carolina, South Dakota, and Oklahoma Territory, were not printed in time to be included. Special legislative sessions held during the year are disregarded, except when laws of general interest were enacted, as in Tennessee and West Virginia. New legislation only is included; and when this is in the form of amendments, only those clauses which add to, or materially change old enactments, are cited. Private or local acts of any state, or those adapted only to peculiar state institutions or conditions are omitted.

The Bulletin consists of two parts: summary and index.

The summary is classified under the general heads shown in the table of contents on the cover.

The index is an alphabetic list of all the specific topics contained in the summary, and refers to each entry by its marginal number.

PREFACE

A classified comparative summary of legislation with a subject index is made on cards by the legislative sub-librarian, Mr W. B. Shaw, as fast as the session laws come into the state library. This is necessary to enable him to answer promptly frequent inquiries as to legislation in other states.

The library prints this index at the beginning of each year in order that legislators and other state officers may know at a glance what of special value in the subject under consideration is available in the publications of other states in our state library without the labor of going there to consult the ms. index. It is believed that this will not only save much time but will contribute materially to the advancement of the standards of legislation, if the promoters and opponents of each measure are able with a minimum of labor to utilize the experience of other states which have been recently working over the same or similar problems.

The references cover the laws enacted during 1891 by 35 states and two territories. In most cases the laws are briefly summarized as well as cited, the aim being to present clearly and concisely material for comparative study of the most recent phases of state legislation on all subjects of general interest. Such a summary was impracticable in cases where a general law embraced a great number of minor regulations. Citations, as a rule, are made by state, number of chapter, and date of approval, but in Delaware, North Carolina, Ohio, and Rhode Island, where the governor's approval is not necessary, only date of final passage by the legislature can be given. This date is also given in other states, in the case of bills which are passed over the governor's veto, and when they become laws without his signature on the expiration of a certain period of time, the date of such expiration is the one given. (In the laws of Texas this date is omitted.) The session laws of Colorado, Idaho, Illinois, Missouri, Montana, and Oregon are without chapter numbers, and references to them are made by page numbers inclosed in brackets. References are given to laws passed during the closing weeks of 1890 in Alabama, Idaho, South Carolina and Wyoming, and printed too late to be included in the summary for last year. Legislation of December 1891 will appear in the summary for 1892. The Georgia laws of 1891 are not yet printed, and could not be included in this Bulletin.

New legislation only is included; and when this is in the form of amendments, only those clauses which add to, or materially change old enactments, are cited. Private or local acts and those adapted only to peculiar state institutions or conditions are omitted.

The Bulletin consists of two parts: summary and index.

The summary is classified under the general heads shown in the table of contents on the cover.

The index is an alphabetic list of all the specific topics contained in the summary, and refers to each entry by its marginal number.

The whole is followed by an appendix containing the latest obtainable statistics of state finances.

University of the State of New York

Incorporated May 1, 1784; reorganized April 13, 1787; powers enlarged and laws revised and consolidated June 16, 1889.

The University consists of all incorporated institutions of academic and higher education, with the State Library, State Museum, and such other libraries, museums or other institutions for higher education in this state as may be admitted by the regents to the University.

Its object is, in all proper ways, to encourage and promote academic and higher education.

Beside the State Library and State Museum, there are in the University 440 institutions — 103 academies, 252 high schools, and 84 degree-conferring and professional institutions, viz.: 18 colleges of arts and science for men, nine for women, and four for men and women, seven law schools, 16 medical schools, four schools of pharmacy, 12 theological schools, three polytechnic, 11 special institutions and one library. Of these, one medical college, six theological schools, two law schools, and one special school confer no degrees.

The 16 medical schools include one homeopathic, one eclectic, two for women, one of dentistry, two veterinary, and one post-graduate college. Of the 12 schools of theology, three are baptist, two presbyterian, one each Lutheran, episcopal, universalist, Christian, catholic, German Lutheran, and reformed. The 11 special schools (except the Dudley Observatory, which is part of Union University), include only institutions with degree-conferring powers, though to show the full facilities of the state, many institutions doing similar work should be included in this list. The law ranks as "colleges" only those with degree-conferring powers. These include three popular institutions (Cooper Union, Chautauqua, and Pratt Institute), three pedagogical colleges, one each of political science, art, music, and magnetics. While there are 74 institutions in which degrees may be earned, there are only 53 degree-conferring bodies in the state, as in a university or a college having a professional school attached, a single board of trustees confers all degrees. Columbia thus confers degrees in the schools of law, medicine and political science, and in Barnard College for women. Union confers degrees in law, medicine and pharmacy; the University of the City of New York in law, medicine, theology, and pedagogy; St Lawrence and Alfred Universities in theology;

Cornell in law, pharmacy, and engineering; Syracuse in medicine and art; Niagara in law, medicine and theology.

The powers of the University are vested in 23 regents, including the Governor, Lieutenant-Governor, Secretary of State, and Superintendent of Public Instruction, ex officio. Regents are elected in the same manner as senators of the United States, and serve without salary.

The regents have power to incorporate, and to alter or repeal the charters of colleges, academies, libraries, museums, or other educational institutions belonging to the University; to distribute to them all funds granted by the state for their use; to inspect their workings and require annual reports under oath of their presiding officers; to establish examinations as to attainments in learning, and confer on successful candidates suitable certificates, diplomas and degrees, and to confer honorary degrees.

They apportion annually an academic fund of $106,000, a part for buying books and apparatus for academies and high schools raising an equal amount for the same purpose, and the balance, on the basis of attendance and of the regents' examinations.

The regents meet regularly on the second Thursday of February, Thursday of Convocation week and the second Wednesday in December. Numerous special meetings are held as called by the Chancellor or on request of five regents.

The University Convocation of the regents and the officers of colleges and academies belonging to the University, for consideration of subjects of mutual interest, is held annually at the capitol in Albany on the first Wednesday, Thursday and Friday after July 4.

The work of the University is divided into five departments:

1 Regents' office (Executive)—including incorporations, supervision, reports, finances and all other work not assigned to another department.

2 Examinations—including preliminary, law student, medical student, academic, higher, law, medical and any other examinations conducted by the regents.

3 University Extension—including the promotion and wider extension of opportunities and facilities for education.

4 State Library—including duplicate department, library school and all other library interests intrusted to the regents.

5 State Museum—including the work of state geologist, paleontologist, botanist, entomologist and zoologist, together with any other scientific interests of the University.

PREFACE

A classified comparative summary of legislation with a subject index is made on cards by the legislative sub-librarian, Mr W. B. Shaw, as fast as the session laws come into the state library. This is necessary to enable him to answer promptly frequent inquiries as to legislation in other states.

The library prints this index at the beginning of each year in order that legislators and other state officers may know at a glance what of special value in the subject under consideration is available in the publications of other states in our state library without the labor of going there to consult the ms index. It is believed that this will not only save much time but will contribute materially to the advancement of the standards of legislation, if the promoters and opponents of each measure are able with a minimum of labor to utilize the experience of other states which have been recently working over the same or similar problems.

The references cover the laws enacted during 1892 by 18 states and one territory. In most cases the laws are briefly summarized as well as cited, the aim being to present clearly and concisely material for comparative study of the most recent phases of state legislation on all subjects of general interest. Such a summary was impracticable in cases where a general law embraced a great number of minor regulations. Citations, as a rule, are made by state, number of chapter, and date of approval, but in Ohio and Rhode Island, where the governor's approval is not necessary, only date of final passage by the legislature can be given. This date is also given in other states, in the case of bills which are passed over the governor's veto, and when they become laws without his signature on the expiration of a certain period of time, the date of such expiration is the one given. For chapters of the new Mississippi code, however, no date is given. The laws of Georgia and of the extra session in North Dakota are without chapter numbers, and references to them are made by page numbers inclosed in brackets. References are given to laws passed during the latter part of 1891 in South Carolina and Georgia, and printed too late to be included in the summary for last year. Legislation of December 1892 will appear in the summary for 1893. The Kentucky laws of 1892 are not yet printed, and could not be included in this Bulletin.

New legislation only is included ; and when this is in the form of amendments, only those clauses which add to, or materially change old enactments, are cited. Private or local acts and those adapted only to peculiar state institutions or conditions are omitted.

The Bulletin consists of two parts : summary and index.

The summary is classified under the general heads shown in the table of contents on the cover.

The index is an alphabetic list of all specific topics contained in the summary, and refers to each entry by its marginal number.

As in many states financial reports are available only once in two years because of biennial legislative sessions, the statistical charts of state finances as printed in the last issue of this bulletin can be given only in alternate years. They will appear for 1893, '95, '97, etc.

University of the State of New York

Incorporated May 1, 1784; reorganized April 13, 1787; powers enlarged and laws revised and consolidated June 15, 1889, and April 27, 1892.

The University consists of all incorporated institutions of academic and higher education, with the State library, State museum, and such other libraries, museums or other institutions for higher education in this state as may be admitted by its regents.

Its object is, in all proper ways, to encourage and promote academic and higher education throughout the state.

Beside the State library and State museum, there are in the University 476 institutions — 390 academies and high schools, and 86 degree-conferring and professional institutions, viz.: 21 colleges of arts and science for men, eight for women, and five for men and women, seven law schools, 19 medical schools, three schools of pharmacy, 12 theological schools, one polytechnic and 10 special institutions. Of these, two colleges, two law, three medical, four theological, and two special schools confer no degrees.

The 19 medical schools include one homeopathic, one eclectic, two for women, two of dentistry, two veterinary, and two post graduate. Of the twelve schools of theology, three are baptist, two presbyterian, one each Lutheran, episcopal, universalist, Christian, catholic, German Lutheran, and reformed. The 10 special schools (except Cooper Union and the Dudley observatory, which is part of Union university), include only institutions with degree-conferring powers, though to show the full facilities of the state, many institutions doing similar work should be included in this list.

The powers of the University are vested in 23 regents, including the governor, lieutenant-governor, secretary of state and superintendent of public instruction, ex officio. Regents are elected in the same manner as senators of the United States, and serve without salary.

The regents have power to incorporate, and to alter or repeal the charters of colleges, academies, libraries, museums, or other educational institutions belonging to the University ; to distribute funds granted by the state for their use ; to inspect their workings and require annual reports under oath of their presiding officers ; to establish examinations as to attainments in learning, and confer on successful candidates suitable certificates, diplomas and degrees, and to confer honorary degrees.

They apportion annually an academic fund of $106,000, a part for buying books and apparatus for academies and high schools raising an equal amount for the same purpose, and the balance, on the basis of attendance and of regents' examinations.

The regents meet regularly on the second Thursday of February and the second Wednesday in December. Numerous special meetings are held as called by the chancellor or on the request of five regents.

The University Convocation of the regents and the officers of colleges and academies belonging to the University, for consideration of subjects of mutual interest, is held annually at the capitol in Albany on the first Wednesday, Thursday and Friday after July 4.

The work of the University is divided into five departments :

1 Executive — including incorporations, supervision, inspection, reports, finances and all other work not assigned to another department.

2 Examinations — including preliminary, law student, medical student, academic, higher, law, medical, library and any other examinations conducted by the regents.

3 Extension — including the work of promoting and extending more widely opportunities and facilities for education.

4 State Library — including public libraries and duplicate department, library school and all other library interests intrusted to the regents.

5 State Museum — including the work of state geologist, paleontologist, botanist, entomologist, and zoologist, together with any other scientific interests of the University.

PREFACE

A classified comparative summary of legislation with a subject index is made on cards by the legislative assistant, Mr J. L. Harrison, as fast as proofs or advance copies of the session laws can be secured. This is necessary to enable the state library to answer promptly frequent inquiries as to legislation in other states.

The library prints this index at the beginning of each year in order that legislators and other state officers may know at a glance what of special value in the subject under consideration in the publications of other states is available in our state library without the labor of going there to consult the ms index. This not only saves much time but should contribute materially to advancing the standards of legislation, as promoters and opponents of each measure can with a minimum of labor utilize the experience of other states which have recently been working over the same or similiar problems.

The references cover the laws enacted during 1893 by 39 states and one territory. In most cases the laws are briefly summarized as well as cited, the aim being to present clearly and concisely material for comparative study of the most recent phases of state legislation on all subjects of general interest. Such a summary is impracticable in cases where a general law embraces a great number of minor regulations. Citations, as a rule, are made by state, number of chapter, and date of approval, but in Delaware, North Carolina, Ohio, and Rhode Island, where the governor's approval is not necessary, only date of final passage by the legislature can be given. This date is also given in other states, in the case of bills which are passed over the governor's veto, and when they become laws without his signature on the expiration of a certain period of time, the date of such expiration is the one given. (In the laws of Texas this date is omitted.) The session laws of Georgia, Idaho, Illinois, Missouri, Montana and Oregon are without chapter numbers, and references to them are made by page numbers inclosed in parentheses. References are given to laws passed during the closing weeks of 1892 in Alabama, Georgia, New Mexico and South Carolina, and during the closing weeks of 1891 and the year 1892 in Kentucky, and printed too late to be included in the summary for last year. Legislation of December 1893 will appear in the summary for 1894, as well the Georgia laws of 1893 which are not yet printed.

New legislation only is included; and when this is in the form of amendments, only those clauses which add to, or materially change old enactments, are cited. Private or local acts and those adapted only to peculiar state institutions or conditions are omitted.

The bulletin consists of two parts: summary and index.

The summary is classified under the general heads shown in the table of contents on the cover.

The index is an alphabetic list of all the specific topics contained in the summary, and refers to each entry by its marginal number.

a The summary for the first part of 1893 (26 states) was prepared by the former sub-librarian, Mr W. B. Shaw, now professor in Pomona college, California.

University of the State of New York

Object. The object of the University as defined by law is to encourage and promote education in advance of the common elementary branches. Its field includes not only the work of academies, colleges, universities, professional and technical schools but also educational work connected with libraries, museums, university extension courses and similar agencies.

The University is a supervisory and administrative, not a teaching institution. It is a state department and at the same time a federation of more than 500 institutions of higher and secondary education.

Government. The University is governed and all its corporate powers exercised by 19 elective regents and by the governor, lieutenant-governor, secretary of state and superintendent of public instruction who are ex officio regents. Regents are elected in the same manner as United States senators; they are unsalaried and are the only public officers in New York chosen for life.

The elective officers are a chancellor and a vice-chancellor who serve without salary, and a secretary.

The secretary, under official bonds for $10,000, is responsible for the safe keeping and proper use of the University seal and of the books, records and other property in charge of the regents, and for the proper administration and discipline of its various offices and departments.

Powers and duties. Beside many other important powers and duties, the regents have power to incorporate, and to alter or revoke the charters of universities, colleges, academies, libraries, museums, or other educational institutions; to distribute to them funds granted by the state for their use; to inspect their workings and require annual reports under oath of their presiding officers; to establish examinations as to attainments in learning and confer on successful candidates suitable certificates, diplomas and degrees, and to confer honorary degrees.

They apportion annually an academic fund of $106,000, part for buying books and apparatus for academies and high schools raising an equal amount for the same purpose, and the remainder on the basis of attendance and the results of instruction as shown by satisfactory completion of prescribed courses for which the regents examinations afford the official test. They also expend annually $25,000 for the benefit of free public libraries.

Regents meetings. The annual meeting is on the second Wednesday in December. Special meetings are held whenever business requires.

Convocation. The University convocation of the regents and the officers of institutions in the University, for consideration of subjects of mutual interest, has been held annually since 1863 in the senate chamber in Albany on the first Wednesday, Thursday and Friday after July 4.

Though primarily a New York meeting, nearly all questions discussed are of equal interest outside the state. Its reputation as the most important higher educational meeting of the country has in the past few years drawn to it many eminent educators not residents of New York, who are most cordially welcomed and share fully in all discussions. It elects each year council of five to represent it in intervals between meetings. Its proceedings issued annually are of great value in all educational libraries.

University of the State of New York

ADMINISTRATIVE DEPARTMENTS

1 Regents office (executive)—including incorporation, supervision, inspection, reports, legislation, finances and all other work not assigned to another department.

2 Examination—including preacademic, law student, medical student, academic, higher, law, medical, library, extension and any other examinations conducted by the regents, and also credentials or degrees conferred on examination.

The preacademic examinations, which determine attainment of academic rank, set the standard for graduation from grammar schools, and thus serve as a strong stimulus to the elementary schools of the state.

The examinations are conducted as the best lever for securing better work from teachers and more systematic and continuous study from students, and as the best means of detecting and eliminating inefficient teachers or methods. They are held each term in the 420 academies and high schools of the University and also at various central points where there are 10 or more candidates, cover 120 subjects and require over 500,000 question papers annually.

3 Extension—including summer, vacation, evening and correspondence schools and other forms of extension teaching, lecture courses, study clubs, reading circles and other agencies for the promotion and wider extension of opportunities and facilities for education to those unable to attend the usual teaching institutions.

The most important part of the movement is provision of the best reading for all citizens through the public libraries department and by means of traveling, home and capitol libraries and annotated lists. Extension work properly includes all efforts by the University for extending educational opportunities to those outside the teaching institutions.

4 State library—including state law, medical, and education libraries, public libraries and duplicate departments, Library school, traveling, extension, home and capitol libraries, reading courses, annotated lists and other bibliographic publications, lending books to students and all other library interests intrusted to the regents.

Public libraries department. This is devoted solely to promoting general library interests of the state, which through it expends $25,000 a year for the benefit of free public libraries.

Traveling libraries are in charge of the public libraries department and are lent six months at a time to local libraries needing such supplements or to communities not yet having organized permanent libraries.

Duplicate department. This forms a great state clearing house, to which any library in the state may send books which it no longer requires and select from it in return an equal value of books suited to its locality.

Library school. The law authorizes the state library to give to any librarian, assistant, or other person interested in any library in the state, instruction and assistance in organizing and administering libraries. Students receive from the state library staff, in return for services rendered to the library during their two years course, careful training in cataloging, classification and all other duties of professional librarianship.

5 State museum—including all scientific specimens and collections, works of art, objects of historic interest and similar property appropriate to a general museum, if owned by the state and not placed in other custody by a specific law, also the research department carried on by the state geologist and paleontologist, botanist and entomologist, with all other scientific interests of the University.

PREFACE

A classified comparative summary of legislation with a subject index is made on cards by the legislative assistant^a, as fast as proofs or advance copies of the session laws can be secured. This is necessary to enable the state library to answer promptly frequent inquiries as to legislation in other states.

The library prints this index at the beginning of each year in order that legislators and other state officers may know at a glance what of special value in the subject under consideration in the publications of other states is available in our state library without the labor of going there to consult the ms index. This not only saves much time but should contribute materially to advancing the standards of legislation, as promoters and opponents of each measure can with a minimum of labor utilize the experience of other states which have recently been working over the same or similar problems.

The references cover the laws enacted during 1894 by 18 states and one territory. In most cases the laws are briefly summarized as well as cited, the aim being to present clearly and concisely material for comparative study of the most recent phases of state legislation on all subjects of general interest. Such a summary is impracticable in cases where a general law embraces a great number of minor regulations. Citations, as a rule, are made by state, number of chapter, and date of approval, but in Ohio and Rhode Island, where the governor's approval is not necessary, only date of final passage by the legislature can be given. This date is also given in other states, in the case of bills which are passed over the governor's veto, and when they become laws without his signature on the expiration of a certain period of time, the date of such expiration is the one given. The session laws of Georgia are without chapter numbers, and references to them are made by page numbers inclosed in parentheses. References are given to laws passed during the closing weeks of 1893 in Georgia, South Carolina and Virginia, and printed too late to be included in the summary for last year. Legislation of December 1894 will appear in the summary for 1895, as will the Iowa and Vermont laws of 1894 which have not yet been received.

New legislation only is included; and when this is in the form of amendments, only those clauses which add to, or materially change old enactments, are cited. Private or local acts and those adapted only to peculiar state institutions or conditions are omitted.

The bulletin consists of two parts: summary and index.

The summary is classified under the general heads shown in the table of contents on the cover.

The index is an alphabetic list of all the specific topics contained in the summary, and refers to each entry by its marginal number.

^a The summary for the first part of 1894 (11 states) was prepared by the former legislative assistant, Mr J. L. Harrison, now librarian of Providence athenaeum, R. I.

University of the State of New York

Object. The object of the University as defined by law is to encourage and promote education in advance of the common elementary branches. Its field includes not only the work of academies, colleges, universities, professional and technical schools but also educational work connected with libraries, museums, university extension courses and similar agencies.

The University is a supervisory and administrative, not a teaching institution. It is a state department and at the same time a federation of more than 500 institutions of higher and secondary education.

Government. The University is governed and all its corporate powers exercised by 19 elective regents and by the governor, lieutenant-governor, secretary of state and superintendent of public instruction who are ex officio regents. Regents are elected in the same manner as United States senators; they are unsalaried and are the only public officers in New York chosen for life.

The elective officers are a chancellor and a vice-chancellor who serve without salary, and a secretary.

The secretary, under official bonds for $10,000, is responsible for the safe keeping and proper use of the University seal and of the books, records and other property in charge of the regents, and for the proper administration and discipline of its various offices and departments.

Powers and duties. Beside many other important powers and duties, the regents have power to incorporate, and to alter or revoke the charters of universities, colleges, academies, libraries, museums, or other educational institutions; to distribute to them funds granted by the state for their use; to inspect their workings and require annual reports under oath of their presiding officers; to establish examinations as to attainments in learning and confer on successful candidates suitable certificates, diplomas and degrees, and to confer honorary degrees.

They apportion annually an academic fund of $106,000, part for buying books and apparatus for academies and high schools raising an equal amount for the same purpose, and the remainder on the basis of attendance and the results of instruction as shown by satisfactory completion of prescribed courses for which the regents examinations afford the official test. They also expend annually $25,000 for the benefit of free public libraries.

Regents meetings. The annual meeting is on the second Wednesday in December. Special meetings are held whenever business requires.

Convocation. The University convocation of the regents and the officers of institutions in the University, for consideration of subjects of mutual interest, has been held annually since 1863 in the senate chamber in Albany on the first Wednesday, Thursday and Friday after July 4.

Though primarily a New York meeting, nearly all questions discussed are of equal interest outside the state. Its reputation as the most important higher educational meeting of the country has in the few years drawn to it many eminent educators not residents of New York, who are most cordially welcomed and share fully in all discussions. It elects each year a council of five to represent it in inter-between meetings. Its proceedings issued annually are of great value in all educational libraries.

Departments

1 Administrative (Regents office)—including incorporation, supervision, inspection, reports, legislation, finances and all other work not assigned to another department.

Duplicate division. This is a great state clearing house, to which any institution in the University may send books or apparatus which it no longer requires, and select from it in return an equal value suited to its locality and needs.

2 Examination—including preacademic, law student, medical student, academic, higher, law, medical, library, extension and any other examinations conducted by the regents, and also credentials or degrees conferred on examination.

The examinations are conducted as the best lever for securing better work from teachers and more systematic and continuous study from students, and as the best means of detecting and eliminating inefficient teachers or methods. They cover 120 subjects and require nearly 1,000,000 question papers annually, and are held the week ending the last Friday in January and March and the third Friday in June, in the 469 academies and high schools in the University and also at various central points where there are 10 or more candidates.

3 Extension—including summer, vacation, evening and correspondence schools and other forms of extension teaching, lecture courses, study clubs, reading circles and other agencies for the promotion and wider extension of opportunities and facilities for education, specially for those unable to attend the usual teaching institutions.

Public libraries division. To promote the general library interests of the state, which through it expends $25,000 a year for the benefit of free public libraries. Under its charge are the traveling libraries for lending to local libraries or to communities not yet having permanent libraries.

The most important factor of the extension movement is provision of the best reading for all citizens by means of traveling, home and capitol libraries and annotated lists through the public libraries division.

4 State library—including state law, medical, and education libraries, library school, bibliographic publications, lending books to students and similar library interests.

Library school. The law authorizes the state library to give to any librarian, assistant, or other person interested in any library in the state, instruction and assistance in organizing and administering libraries. Students receive from the state library staff, in return for services rendered to the library during their two years' course, careful training in cataloging, classification and all other duties of professional librarianship.

5 State museum—including all scientific specimens and collections, works of art, objects of historic interest and similar property appropriate to a general museum, if owned by the state and not placed in other custody by a special law; also the research department carried on by the state geologist and paleontologist, botanist and entomologist, and all similar scientific interests of the University.
